COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY

The course reflects on the religious phenomenon, particularly the God-question. It is a disciplined exploration into the religious experiences of the believer, making optimal use of the natural light of reason aided by the supernatural light of revelation in an attempt to understand the Divine.

TRIUNE GOD & CHRISTOLOGY

The course presents the religious phenomenon and God's revelation with particular attention on the mystery of the person and mission of Jesus Christ, the fullness of God's revelation. He revealed the mystery of the Triune God: Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, and God's plan of salvation.

PNEUMATOLOGY / THEOLOGY OF THE HOLY SPIRIT

The first major part consists in the traditional discussion of the quadpartite relationship of the Holy Spirit with creation, humanity, Jesus Christ and the Church. The second part consists in a contemporary exploratory theology of Holy Spirit vis-a-vis his creative presence and the problem of suffering, his distinct and proper role in creation as immanent life-giver, and his place in the God-world relationship.

ECCLESIOLOGY & MARIOLOGY

The course presents the Mystery of the Church as the universal sacrament of salvation and the instrument of humanity's communion with God and the whole of creation. The Blessed Virgin Mary, Mother of God, plays an important role in the economy of salvation and the life of the Church.

CHRISTIAN ANTHROPOLOGY

The course presents the phenomenon of the human person as created in the image and likeness of God, as the apex of God's creation, fallen yet redeemed and restored to divine friendship in Christ. It answers the questions concerning the origin of the human race and the world, the meaning of human existence and of world history, the meaning of suffering, sin and evil, and the ultimate finality of all created realities.

COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

FUNDAMENTAL MORAL THEOLOGY

This course is designed as an introduction to fundamental moral theology in the Roman Catholic tradition. This will enable students to reflect systematically about the Christian moral life within the framework of the Catholic tradition and current debates in Christian morality.

RELIGIOUS ETHICS

This branch of Special Moral Theology handles the issue of man's relationship with God. It deals first with the question of humanity as called to a saving dialogue with God. In order to be an able partner in this saving dialogue human beings must be properly equipped. Thus, the course discusses the divine infusion of the theological virtues of Faith, Hope and Divine Love.

BIOETHICS & SEXUAL ETHICS

This branch of Special Moral Theology deals with two major areas of concern: human life (bioethics) and human sexuality (sexual ethics.) Bioethics means life ethics. It studies the ethical principles, values, norms and practices concerning biomedical interventions on human life which ought to be defended from the moment of conception to natural death. Sexual ethics deals with the Christian view of human sexuality, marriage and the family.

SOCIAL ETHICS

This branch of Special Moral Theology covers the wide arena of human interrelationships. It bases itself on a Scriptural and Theological vision of who and what man is, in himself, and in relation to others, to society in its entirety, and the whole of created reality in general. It also deals with the virtues of fraternal charity and justice.

AI & THE MORALITY IN THE SOCIAL MEDIA

This course is meant to analyze, study and discuss within the bounds of Catholic Morality how educators, parents and Church leaders may navigate in this new digital revolution which Pope Leo XIV remarked as one of the reasons why he chose the name after Pope Leo XIII.

*CLASS SCHEDULE: CHOICE OF 1ST OR 2ND SEMESTER - EIGHT SESSIONS, SATURDAY 08:00-17:00

COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

GLOBAL & LOCAL SITUATIONER OF CLIMATE

Climate Change is one of the biggest challenges of our time, and it is caused by a complex interplay of natural and human factors. Through this course, students will gain an understanding of the basic principles of climate science, including the greenhouse effect, radiative forcing, and feedback mechanisms.

THE WORD & THE WORLD

The Word and the world is designed to examine the biblical attitudes and beliefs regarding ecology. It explores the theological foundations of environmental stewardship as found in the Old and New Testaments, and how these attitudes and beliefs can inform contemporary practices in the field of ecology. Through the analysis of relevant biblical passages, students will examine topics such as the creation narrative, human responsibility for the environment, and the biblical view of the natural world.

COSMOGENESIS – HOMOGENESIS – CHRIOSTOGENESIS

Cosmogenesis and the Holy Spirit explores the intersection between cosmology and theology by examining the concept of cosmogenesis and its relationship with the Holy Spirit. Students will explore various cosmological theories and models, including the Big Bang theory, cosmic inflation, and the multiverse hypothesis and examine how different theologians and religious traditions have engaged with cosmological concepts and incorporated them into their understanding of the Holy Spirit. Students will then consider how scientific discoveries and theories have impacted theological concepts and how they can inform contemporary debates on issues on climate change and environmental stewardship.

ETHICS OF ECOLOGY

Ethics of Ecology examines the relationship between morality and ecology. The course explores the ethical dimensions of environmental issues, such as climate change, pollution, and biodiversity loss, and evaluates how Christian moral theology can provide a framework for responding to these issues.

ENVIRONMENT & THE LAW

The Environment and the Law course focuses on the legal framework and regulatory structures designed to protect the environment. The course examines the principles and concepts of environmental law, including the sources of environmental law, the role of agencies and courts in enforcing environmental regulations, and the relationship between environmental law and other areas of law.

SOCIAL DEVELOPMENT & ECOLOGY

The Community Development and Ecology course explores the complex relationships between human communities and their natural environments. The course focuses on the ways in which ecological systems, including biodiversity, ecosystem services, and natural resource management, impact human communities, as well as the ways in which communities can contribute to ecological conservation and regeneration.

WASTE MANAGEMENT

The Materials Recovery, Classification and Composting workshop is a comprehensive program that will tackle the negative results of previous approaches and analyze their basic flaws. Then the discussion shifts to creative innovations lifted from the true spirit of ecological solid waste management (RA 9003). After learning the basic principles of materials classification, a detailed discussion focuses on composting using community-level methods. The workshop includes basic knowledge in setting up a Materials Recovery Facility (MRF), various collection systems and how to involve the community in the ecological waste management program. Community participation in waste avoidance, reduction, repair/refurbish, recycling and organic gardening efforts are taken up. The goal will be to establish a “zero-waste” community.
